29 May 2015

The IMC Conference is proud to announce that its 5th annual conference will be returning to Cape Town on the 3rd and 4th of August at the Cape Town International Convention Centre.

The IMC Conference returns to the mother city for what is recognised as the leading marketing and communication conference in South Africa to address the state of the marketing nation. Jaco van Zyl, Managing Director of IMC Conferences, says: "We are excited to be hosting the conference in Cape Town for the 5th time; we know that our new 2015 theme will benefit our delegates by exposing them to top industry leaders speaking on the most relevant communication disciplines and trends with actionable learning. The format of this conference allows delegates ample networking opportunities with top marketing professionals and peers alike."

This year's theme for the IMC conference will focus on giving delegates an overview of the state of marketing in South Africa, based on facts, trends and case studies to enable marketing and communication practitioners to better understand the fundamental requirements in creating any integrated marketing communication campaign which includes data insights, planning, execution and measurement.

In aligning the content of the conference with 2015 Theme: The State of the Marketing Address, the following tracks will be covered at the conference:

- Understanding Customers through data and Insights
- Integrated Campaigns Planning and Best in class case studies
- Changing the face of Communication (New Media, mobile and digital)
- Analytics and measuring impact
- Creative Execution
