UJ Arts and Culture, a division of the Faculty of Art, Design and Architecture (Fada) at the University of Johannesburg, has announced a partnership with Business and Arts South Africa NPC (Basa), for a provocative new project, UnFestival SA. A week of un-theatre, un-dance, non-exhibitions, non-workshops and a smorgasbord of nothing that may or may not take place during May (depending on how you look at it).

According to Pieter Jacobs, head of UJ Arts and Culture: "We all know that festivals, arts centres, theatres, galleries and other cultural institutions have been forced into cancelling events and shutting their doors amid the chaos of the Covid-19 pandemic. UnFestival SA is a conceptual event inspired by the Czech Festival of Nothing, and was conceived as a means to help independent creatives

Pieter Jacobs, head of UJ Arts and Culture and the most vulnerable in the arts sector. UJ has been a Basa member for several years now, and we saw the opportunity to partner around this symbolic concept for the benefit of students in the Faculty of Arts, Design and Architecture and, through our partnership with Basa and its artist relief efforts, for the sector as a whole."

Jacobs announced that arts lovers, supporters and stakeholders across a spectrum of creative disciplines will be able to buy tickets to non-events at UJ: "A total of 50% of UnFestival SA's proceeds will be distributed to needy students via the UJ Fada Dean's Bursary Fund, which provides support for academically-deserving students, and presents an opportunity for the public to give hope to the academic journey of the youth. The balance of 50% will be distributed via Basa's Supporting Grants programme, which now offers artists and creative practitioners once-off, short-term financial aid for Covid-19-related medical care or to offset the loss of income due to the cancellation of confirmed engagements (resulting from the nationwide lockdown or other emergency measures)."

The full UnFestival SA programme will be revealed at an exclusive Gala Opening on 15 May 2020 to which no one will go or, indeed, be invited. Jacobs added that many people will have had access to free entertainment, to the point where few artists can say they have not been asked to perform for the exposure, and said that UnFestival SA is an opportunity to reciprocate and pay it forward.

Visit www.arts.uj.ac.za or www.basa.co.za for full programme details on 4 May 2020, and show your support by buying a ticket – but please don't come.
