

Winners of inaugural South African Brandy Innovation Challenge announced

The South African Brandy Foundation has announced the winners of its first South African Brandy Innovation Challenge, a competition that invites out-of-the-barrel creatives to submit game-changing brandy business ideas for the chance to win a cash award and mentorship in launching their new brand.

South African Brandy Innovation Challenge winners Tinashe Nyamudoka, Michelle Coates and Coetzer Hanekom. Source: Supplied

The winners were revealed on Monday during an awards luncheon hosted at Western Cape Premier Alan Winde's official Leeuwenhof residence in Cape Town

Selected from 40 entries as the overall winners were Tinashe Nyamudoka and Kumusha Brandy, in the category of new market development; Coetzer Hanekom and De Mas Kalahari Fynetjie Rosegold brandy, in the category of new intrinsic; and, Michelle Coates for the Blend-Your-Own-Brandy kit, in the category for consumer insights.

Each winner takes home R30,000 and receives mentorship from industry stalwarts in launching their own brandy brand.

Entries open for first SA brandy innovation challenge

30 Aug 2021

Job creation, product innovation

Speaking at the event, Western Cape Provincial Minister of Agriculture Ivan Meyer said: "It is an honour to host some of our globally recognised and award-winning brandy industry stakeholders for the announcement of the winners of the South African Innovation Challenge."

"To the winners, congratulations on having won and being recognised for your efforts. It is my hope that it gives you the necessary platform to develop your skillset and play your part in further placing South African brandy on the world map. You should be very proud of what you have achieved, and I look forward to seeing what you will further accomplish."

He added that the brandy industry, as well as broader agriculture, are essential for job creation in the province, which is why it is so important to acknowledge innovation and excellence and promote it on a global scale.

Christelle Reade-Jahn, Tinashe Nyamudoka, Dr Adriaan Oelofse, Michelle Coates, Ivan Meyer, Coetzer Hanekom and Gerard Martin. Source: Supplied

South African Brandy Foundation director Christelle Reade-Jahn also congratulated the trio on their outstanding achievement. "The competition was very well supported and the submissions we received were superb, which shows that there's no shortage of passion and talent when it comes to South African brandy."

"While only three could be winners in the end, the results certainly bear out the view that this truly home-grown and excellent spirit has a bright and positive future," she added.

KWV brandy makes history at Veritas Awards

9 Nov 2021

Entries for the South African Brandy Innovation Challenge were evaluated by a panel of six independent judges whose focus was on innovation and the expansion of markets to new consumers. From the total of 40 entries received, a top 10 were selected through a rigorous whittling process.

A pitching den was then set up where entrants had four minutes to share their innovative idea with the panel. They then had to answer questions from the panel and the top three were chosen.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>