

Nokia Siemens Networks names Linda Khumalo as new head of sub region Southern Africa

Telecommunications industry enabler Nokia Siemens Networks has announced the appointment of Linda Khumalo as head of its Southern Africa sub region.

Khumalo hails from a strong background in ICT. Khumalo started his professional career as technical officer in the Department of Post and Telecommunication and then, from 1995, spent five years at Telkom South Africa in the positions of corporate account manager; business development manager; senior manager for marketing; and executive for business market and product development. Prior to taking up his new position he was country manager and chief executive officer of Alcatel-Lucent, South Africa.
