

McLaren to part ways with Honda, shifts to Renault

By Ilse van den Berg

19 Sep 2017

NEWSWATCH: After months of speculation, the McLaren team has confirmed that it will split ways with engine supplier, Honda, at the end of the 2017 season and has also announced that it has signed a three-year partnership with Renault.

According to a report on F1 Fanatic, Zak Brown, McLaren executive director said: “There has never been any doubt over Honda’s commitment and energy to the mission of success in Formula One” but “our partnership has not flourished as any of us would have wished. It is certainly not for the want of effort on the part of either Honda or McLaren, but the time has come to move ahead in different directions.”

McLaren to ditch Honda for Mercedes?

Ilse van den Berg 20 Jun 2017

From 2018, McLaren will be using Renault engines. According to Brown, the change gives McLaren the stability it needs to move ahead with its chassis and technical programme for 2018 without any further hesitation.

For more:

- McLaren and Honda confirm they will split at end of 2017 by Keith Collantine
- McLaren confirms three-year Renault engine deal for 2018 by Keith Collantine

ABOUT ILSE VAN DEN BERG

Ilse is a freelance journalist and editor with a passion for people & their stories (check out Passing Stories). She is also the editor of Go & Travel, a platform connecting all the stakeholders in the travel & tourism industry. You can check out her work here and here. Contact Ilse through her website here.

- Between cows and cornfields in the Nissan Qashqai Midnight Edition - 24 Mar 2021
- Legendary Land Rover Defender lives on - 5 Nov 2020
- Why you need to keep your eye on the Peugeot 208 GT-Line - 25 Apr 2019
- 5 reasons why the Jimmy is a great 4x4 for a female - 12 Mar 2019
- Nissan chairman Carlos Ghosn arrested over financial misconduct - 20 Nov 2018

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>