

BA reopens Joburg-Harare route

British Airways, operated by Comair, has reopened bookings for daily regional flights between Johannesburg and Harare. Bookings for the regional route are open from today and will start operating on 28 March 2021.

Image: Supplied

Desmond O'Connor, executive head of Revenue Management at British Airways says: "We are delighted to reopen bookings for our services to Harare as part of the gradual ramp-up to our schedule. These flights will offer more choice for those customers who would like to fly to the regional destination from South Africa.

"We anticipate that the reopening of this route and others in future will be well-received by corporate and leisure travellers. We will soon reintroduce holiday packages through our tour operating divisions, which will mutually improve regional tourism between the SADC countries."

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>